WHAT'S IN THE PIPELINE

BIM Pipeline is a game changer when it comes to Web-based, rules-driven materials management and estimation, as it uses BIM (building information modeling) data to directly drive detailed take-offs. For builders, this means leveraging data to create full master plan estimates with delta BOM (bill of materials) reports for options and lot customizations. In the past year, the company has continued to expand the core product's functionality with new features including supplemental to bid items, early model/option and job-cost analysis, community standard costs, and community standard option costs, as a few examples. The bottomline is the product is not only unique, but also offers an easy way to evolve business and improve workflow.
